PREFACE

I traveled from east to west, Maine to Mexico collecting and compiling from references, family Bible records, papers and scraps of papers, direct information from the living, cemeteries, public libraries, Library of Congress, National and many other Archives. I also had the pleasure of corresponding with genealogists and others in the British Isles. Several years have been spent and time does not permit further review. I have reviewed when and where possible and as the data herein is by no means complete, it may be helpful to those who are in search of same. I hope that the reader may be rewarded in some small way. It may be a step into and look through some door of yesteryear. I apologize for any and all errors.

I take this opportunity to thank all those who contributed. Without their help, inspiration and information this book would not have been possible.

Many families that came to America in the early part of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries seemed to have family solidarity. About the beginning of the nineteenth century many families followed the tide of pioneering new lands and wide open spaces of the south and west. Later their offspring moved still further. Thus by the beginning of the twentieth century many families became entirely unknown to each other.

Darlington, county seat of Darlington County, is located in the northeastern part of South Carolina in the area known as "the Pee Dee."

The name Darlington was given to the county in the year of 1785. It is generally conceded that Darlington was named for the town of Darlington, Durham County, England.

The first Court House was built about the year 1791 and was burned March 19, 1806. The next Court House was burned March 25, 1866, and was rebuilt in 1870. This building was replaced in 1903-04. The Town of Darlington received its first Charter on December 19, 1835.

The town was laid out around a square, with the Court House in the center. Trading posts soon established themselves around the Square—as was common in early America throughout the Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia.

Today the court house stands on the original site.

INTRODUCTION

A family genealogy concerns many people kin to each other by blood or marriage. It is needless to mention here the valid reasons which can be offered in favor of anyone's research for his or her ancestry. No authentic or real lineage can be based on tradition, hearsay, or guess work. There must be found some record which either shows the direct line of descent or from which logical deductions of the same can be made. Records such as marriages, deaths, wills, deeds, tax lists, etc., are usually found in Courthouses, State and National Archives, Bibles, churches, gravestones and old newspaper files. Due to the fact that many of the old Courthouses were destroyed during both the Revolutionary and the Civil Wars, it is almost impossible to authenticate each descent in every branch of a colonial family from the earliest period of our country. Many of the old records which are still in existence are in fragmentary condition. Some spelling is poor and correct interpretation cannot always be made by the copyists.

Education advanced slowly, illiteracy was prevalent and the English language and its spelling had not become stabilized. Some wealthy planters either sent their sons to England to be educated or else obtained teachers for their families. Evidence of the lack of education even among some who held important positions of trust and honor in the colonies is evident in their poor spelling. The lamp of learning seems to have almost flickered out had it not been for the establishing of Harvard College in Massachusetts (1636) and William and Mary College in Virginia (1693).

Thomas Jefferson, a father of our public school system, put into practice the very first ideas of our present highly developed system of free education. Knowledge produces new words and ideas and often new meanings of old words. Much has been added to man's knowledge during the past quarter century and the language had increased by many new words and meanings. There appears to be more progression during the last sixty years than there was in all the nineteen hundred prior years.

Mainly the immigrants to this country underwent hardships and dangers. Many who followed the simple and necessary callings needed knowledge to subdue a wilderness; such as surveyors, carpenters, blacksmiths, wheelwrights, masons and the like. An industrious wheelwright of that time, however, would be comparable to an automobile mechanic of today or a good artisan to an inventor.

These hardy pioneers were the early American progenitors of the colonial families and many of their descendants to the present day have pride in their ancestry.

If one stopped to realize such a heritage, could he not be aroused by his forefathers striving to protect and maintain the principles of our wonderful government which they, by their heroism, founded. Washington Irving said, "He lives with his ancestry, and he lives with his posterity; to both does he consider himself involved with deep responsibilities."

George Washington said that practically all the American soldiers in the Revolutionary War were descendants of the early colonists.

Many of the colonial mansions built on the shores of the water-routes of Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina during that period were constructed of bricks and fittings imported from England. However, the majority of the population lived in simple and rudely constructed houses. Many of the best brick houses on record in 1937 were still in a good state of preservation. I remember hearing my father state that his father and family needed more rooms built onto their home so he cut and prepared the sills, boards, and all material including wooden pins building the rooms without using a nail. When he could not groove some timber together he used wooden pins.

Colonial ancestors were the pioneers and settlers who helped to build a nation on the American soil. Their task was hard.

In conjunction with her own experience, the author disclaiming originality, save in the weaving, observed in sketching these outlines the faith, works, travels and hardships of the people molding a new nation. With the age of freedom in religion that eventually followed the flight of Luther from the court of the Pope came also the age of skepticism; not alone skepticism, but hypocrisy. The revolution in theology inaugurated by the reformers shattered the thought-monopoly which had been concentrated in the Pope.

Political disturbances in Europe led men and women to the American continent where they could freely worship God and follow the dictates of their own conscience.

The Ninety-five Theses; Martin Luther on October 31, 1517, a professor of theology in Wittenberg in placing those documents where and when he did was the custom of the day to act thus then a man wanted to engage in a scholastic debate with another. In this respect Luther's action was by no means unusual, yet the forces set in operation by that event in 1517 altered the religious and intellectual pattern of the western world. It launched a great religious revolt that split Christendom from its former single basis into innumerable factions and sects. When Luther and his followers came to believe in doctrines contrary to those held by the Catholic Church they did not try to reform Catholicism but broke away entirely and established another church. This movement has often been called reformation, but that term is not quite accurate. There had been periods of "reform" in the Catholic Church and another was to occur as a result of the forces released by Luther. The significant action of Luther and his followers was more than reformation, it was a religious revolt.

The early scriptures are not devoted to a primary demonstration of God's existence nor to attacks on the sophistries of atheism. From this we may infer that the errors of doubt developed in some later period. The universal accent of mankind to the existence of God is at least strongly corroborative. There is a filial passion within human nature that flames toward heaven; every nation, tribe, and individual yearns for some object of reverence. It is natural for man to worship; his soul is unsatisfied until he finds a deity. When man through transgression fell into darkness concerning the true and living God they established for themselves other deities and so arose the abominations of idolatry. And yet, even the most revolting of these practices testify to the existence of God by demonstrating man's hereditary passion for worship.

PRESERVE OUR HERITAGE

I have had some thoughts as I have looked about me and witnessed some of the things that are going on in this country about America fulfilling her destiny. America shall fulfill her destiny.

Americans have the greatest heritage of all. The founding of this great republic a land choice above all other lands and it fortified against its enemies. How true this has been. This country has never been prepared for war and it has never lost a war.

Genealogy is history surrounded by the events of mankind of the seasons and of the times. It is the season and times when and where the events of that day are created, caused to, and do take place by the frame of mind of the men of the times and the activities that stir therefrom. I think of the Revolutionary War and history reveals to us the struggle that then and there went on within the loosely united colonies. The efforts for freedom from foreign dictatorship and agitation and the desire for local government by local people who pitted themselves along the highways, byways, the post roads and the battlefields against the Redcoats. The desire for a free democracy was not earned in a day, was not brought about in an hour but through a period of time whereby some in the colonies did sacrifice and struggle against the foreigner and against those in the colonies who were loyal to the foreign regime. Some families were pitted against families and brothers against brothers in their separate desires and wishes. Even though the Revolutionary War appeared to be a victory for the loosely united colonies, the clash of arms did not cease without blood, sweat and tears. Then just a few years later the War of 1812 was again upon the American colonizers' doors. The Battle of Savannah took its toll in human lives (Captain Samuel Wise) continuing suffering and misery.

Just a few years later the boys in blue and grey armed themselves, searched out and destroyed as rapidly as possible, bringing more destruction upon a young democracy. This struggle in American history appears to the writer to be of the darkest ages of history of this now proud nation. This "War Between the States," found families pitted against each other, brother against brother. To visit those battlefields today one can almost hear the sound of the bugle, the clash of swords, the roar of the cannon, smell the animal flesh, hear the cry of the young and old in agony dying so soon and for what?

See the United States Department of Interior, National Park Service pamphlet "Fort Sumter National Monument, South Carolina" for a story and pictures of the scene of the bombardment which began the Civil War.

On April 12, 1861, a mortar shell fired from Fort Johnson in Charleston Harbor burst almost directly over Fort Sumter and the tragedy of the American Civil War began. Two years later the fort now in Confederate control became the scene of a gallant defense. For nearly two years determined Confederates kept Federal forces at bay. Fort Sumter National Monument commemorates the "first shot;" the Confederate defense of 1861 and of 1863-65.

From Fort Sumter to Appomattox, their courage, patience, fortitude, endurance and unselfish devotion to country are unparalleled in history. They bore the flag of a nation's trust and fell in a cause though lost, still just, and died for me and you.

One cannot visit the Battle of the Crater and not be deeply moved at the thought of the agony suffered there. See United States Department of Interior National Park Service pamphlet "Petersburg National Military Park, Virginia," The Battle of the Crater.

Starting June 25, 1864, a Pennsylvania regiment composed mainly of coal miners dug a tunnel which enabled them to place a four-ton powder charge under one of the Confederate batteries in the Petersburg line. Shortly before five o'clock on the morning of July 30 the mine was set off. The explosion was terrific. It tore a huge crater in the ground and hurled men and cannons high in the air. Nearly 300 Confederate soldiers were killed. The Federals had expected to charge through the breach thus made but because of confusion and lack of coordination the movement failed. They did succeed in occupying the crater and in taking about a quarter of a mile of the Confederate line. Evidence of the tunnel, the ventilating shaft, and the great mine crater may still be seen.

July 1, 2 and 3, 1863, found Lee at Gettysburg against Meade, the South against the North, brother against brother engaged in the greatest battle ever fought in America. July 4, 1863, the battles at Gettysburg were history and so was the fall of Vicksburg in the West history.

"Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this Continent a new nation, conceived in liberty . . . and that the government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth." (President Lincoln's address at Gettysburg dedicating the Gettysburg National Cemetery, November 19, 1863.)

The screams of agony, the maiming, the blood and unbearable sacrifices of the Booths, the Wises, the Berrys, the Weatherfords, the Dews, the Andersons and so many others stretch all along the highway of American history. From their sacrifices, efforts and determination stemmed hopes for a continued nation, united under God, endowed with freedom and liberty.

A very good history of South Carolina from its first settlement in 1670 to the year 1808 is presented by David Ramsay, and his volumes are in the state library in the capitol in Columbia, South Carolina. An interesting little note may be made here as found in volume 1; there is at about page 225 a loose-leaf plan of Charles Town from a survey by Edward Crisp in the year 1704. The plan is a ragged edge and torn copy, however, it is readable.

The Statutes At Large being a collection of the laws of Virginia from the first session of the Legislature in the year 1629, were published pursuant to an Act of the General Assembly of Virginia and passed on the 5th day of February, 1808, Volume 1 by William Waller Hening, there referred to as Hening's Statutes at Large: Volume 1 was printed for the Editor in New York by Bartow in the year 1823. Colonel Thomas Dew was one of the councillors nominated by the Governor and approved by the House; see page 505; this was done on April 3, 1658 at a Grand Assembly held at James City March 1, 1658. On page 499 George Reade appears to have been one of the subscribers on April 1, 1658 when the Governor dissolved the Assembly and that the Speaker accordingly do dismiss the Burgesses. Prior to that time, a few days more or less, there was the oath of secrecy. The oath was that of the members of the Burgesses, and it reads as follows. "You shall swear that as a Burgess of this House you shall not direct or indirectly repeat nor discuss the present or future transactions, debates, or discourses that are now or hereafter shall be transacted or debated on in the House to any person or persons whatsoever except to a Burgess of this Assembly now present during the time of this present session. So help you God and the contents of this book."

This oath taken by all the Burgesses present. The oath is recorded on page 500. On page 508, the oath for one of the individual members read thusly "You and every one of you shall swear upon the Holy Evangelist and in the sight of God to deliver your opinions faithfully, justly and honestly according to your best understanding and conscience for the general good and prosperity of this country and every particular member thereof and to do your utmost endeavor to prosecute that without mingling with it any particular interest of any person or persons."

It appears that between 1700 and 1800 there was little education in the colonies and that the colonizers came from different parts of Europe and brought with them some of the dark ages. After the War Between the States, the Southern States especially were left in very poor circumstances as a scorched earth policy had taken its toll. It appears to the writer that the War Between the States could have been prevented rather than setting this young nation back many years. Lincoln's assassination was a great tragedy and I feel that Lincoln had no intentions of having the South punished as it was punished after the civil conflict. Some Negroes occupied the prime and chief positions in the State of South Carolina and when the men in "Red Shirts" put Wade Hampton in as Governor of South Carolina, he and the state were facing hard times and the reconstruction days were not easy. Valuable personal property had been secreted from the State of South Carolina and the state was stripped and ragged governmental wise. The reconstruction days were days for tightening the belt, bending the back and molding a new South. Very few records were kept as compared to what could have been kept. Records were destroyed in the North and South during the War Between the States. It is a tragedy that some cemeteries were plowed under and the headstones removed.

CONSANGUINITY (Lat. consanguis, blood together).

The relation subsisting among all the different persons descending from the same stock or common ancestor. See Swezey v. Willis, 1 Brad. Surr. R. (N.Y.) 495.

Having the blood of some common ancestor. Blodget v. Brinsmaid, 9 Vt. 30.

Collateral consanguinity is the relation subsisting among persons who descend from the same common ancestor, but not from each other. It is essential, to constitute this relation, that they spring from the same common root or stock, but in different branches.

Lineal consanguinity is that relation which exists among persons where one is descended from the other, as between the father, or the grandfather, and so upward in a direct ascending line; and between the father and the son, or the grandson, and so downward in a direct descending line.

In computing the degree of lineal consanguinity existing between two persons, every generation in the direct course of relationship between the two parties makes a degree; and the rule is the same by the canon, civil and common law.

The mode of computing degrees of collateral consanguinity at the common and by the canon law is to discover the common ancestor, to begin with him to reckon downwards, and the degree the two persons, or the more remote of them, is distant from the ancestor, is the degree of kindred subsisting between them. For instance, two brothers are related to each other in the first degree, because from the father to each of them is one degree. An uncle and a nephew are related to each other in the second degree, because the nephew is two degrees distant from the common ancestor; and the rule of computation is extended to the remotest degrees of collateral relationship.

The method of computing by the civil law is to begin at either persons in question, and count up to the common ancestor, and then downwards to the other person, calling it a degree for each person, both ascending and descending, and the degrees they stand from each other is the degree in which they stand related.

Thus from a nephew to his father is one degree; to the grandfather two degrees and then to the uncle three which points out the relationship.

The mode of the civil law is preferable, for it points out the actual degree of kindred in all cases; by the mode adopted by the common law, different relations may stand in the same degree. The uncle and nephew stand related in the second degree by the common law, and so are two first cousins, or two sons of two brothers; but by the civil law the uncle and nephew are in the third degree, and the cousins are in the fourth. The mode of computation, however, is immaterial; for both will establish the same person to be the heir; 2 Bla. Com. 202. (Bouvier's Law Dictionary.)

Consanguinity is distinguished from "affinity," which is the connection existing in consequence of a marriage, between each of the married persons and the kindred of the other. (Black's Law Dictionary.)

Col. George Reade descended from Edward III of England and was an ancestor of President George Washington. (See Genealogical Training Class Sunday School Lessons, L.D.S. p. 122 for graphical sketch.) Lionel, Duke of Clarence, Philippa of Clarence, Elizabeth Mortimer, Henry Percy, Elizabeth Gascoigne, Frances Dymoke, Mildred Windebanke, Col. George Reade, Mildred Reade, Mildred Warner and many more of these people are ancestors of the Wise families.

It appears that the First Census of the United States was taken and recorded in 1790, being mainly destroyed by the British in 1812 in Washington.

ANDERSON

In the South Carolina Archives, Columbia, South Carolina, see record of Wills, Volume 2, 1838-53, Darlington County, South Carolina, page 151:

WILL OF WILLIAM ANDERSON, South Carolina, Darlington District: Know all men by these present that I, William Anderson, of State and District aforesaid, being weak in body yet of sound mind do make this my last will and testament and First, I will the payment of all my just debts if there should be any. Second, as my elder sons have received of me in land and other sundry an equivalent to $300 a piece and it being more than will be a piece for the rest of my children I will that they keep that as their portion of my estate. Third, as my daughter Martha Anderson Hatchell has received of me in land and other things an equivalent to $150 believing it will be as much as can be for the rest of the children and want her to be satisfied to receive that as her portion of my estate. Fourth, it is my will that all remain in the hand of my wife Nancy Anderson of the residue of my property until my son Gregory Anderson becomes of age, then I will there shall be a surveyor got and three disinterested men who shall divide my land estate into six parts making one part including my house and other buildings of 90 acres which I give to my wife her lifetime and after her death to my youngest one Thomas Anderson as his part of my land. I don't think the rest of my land can be divided into five equal parts, in value yet it is my will that those men be chosen shall apprise them as near by and they can do that those that draw the less valuable tracts shall have more in money or stock so as to make them equal. It is so my will that the five allotments be named so as to be understood on separate pieces of paper so as to be drawn for and that Gregory Anderson when of age as aforesaid draw but for his part, the others taking care of till Joel Anderson becomes of age and then he draws out his part and so of the rest of the children each one Cherry Ann Anderson, William and Chappel Anderson as they become of age draw out and receive their portion of land. It is my will that the residue of my property remain in the hands of my beloved wife to enable her to raise and educate the minor children and support herself and should she at anytime as the children grow up think that she can spare them and stock and the horse, cow or hogs or house hold or kitchen furniture, she must have to released and keep an account of it so as after her death they may all have received as nearly equal as possible. I will the lower plantation be rented at least so as to be rented every other year till drawn for and goes into the possession of someone of the children. It is my will that my wife Nancy Anderson and my eldest Henry Anderson be my executors to execute this will and may God bless them and prepare us all to meet in Heaven where the things of this world will not be present nor needed, this the 15th day of March, 1848. William Anderson. (He died 24 Sept. 1848) Signed in presence of: Gregory Rollings, John Oliver, Samuel J. Oliver.

Recorded in Will Book 10, page 160. Recorded first October 1848, D. F. Law, ordinary, Darlington District, Apartment A, Package 780.

William Anderson appeared in South Carolina about 1797. Where he came from is not known. No birth date or marriage date could be found. There is some data about a second wife by the name of Nancy Anderson as given in an old family record. No maiden name, just Nancy Anderson. In the will it appeared that he named one of his daughters after one of the witnesses to his will and that the witness was a close friend of his, one Gregory Rollings. The daughter was named Martha Rollings Anderson. An old family record was at a grandson's home, Walter Anderson, of the Lake Swamp Community in Darlington County, about 1950. This was many years after Walter Anderson had passed on. William Anderson apparently was a religious man and a man that loved his family dearly. In his will, he was not so much concerned with giving, devising and bequeathing his property to his family as he wanted his family in the much brighter world with him. It is not clear which wife was the mother of his children; children are listed: Henry Anderson, born March 29, 1818; married Susanah Moriale Lawhorn December 21, 1841; she was born November 9, 1822.

Jesse Anderson, born May 17, 1821.

Joel Anderson was born the 19th, month unknown, 1832; married Rhoda Owens; one child, Mary Gertrude Anderson Weatherford; Joel Anderson died 1863. (See Abstracts of Darlington Co., S.C.)

Cherry Ann Anderson born February 8, 1835; married William Brand; parents of Miss Levinia Brand of Timmons ville, S.C.; she never married because her father, William Brand was a bed patient for more than 33 years and Miss Levinia attended to him.

William Travis Anderson born July 1, 1837.

Chappel Anderson born October 30, 1839; married Martha Campbell; parents of Kistler (Kit) Anderson and Waterman Anderson. Thomas D. Anderson born November 24, 1841; died 1891; married Mary Ward about 1866; she was born March 11, 1846 and died in 1920; Thomas D. Anderson and Mary Ward Anderson were the parents of Walter Anderson.

Miles J. Anderson, born October 27, 1843 and died August 16, 1856; William H. Anderson born November 8, 1844; J. Mathew Baxter Anderson born January 7, 1847 and went from Darlington County, South Carolina to Florida and married Sarah Jane Syfret; she was born October 2, 1853 and died March 3, 1942; he died March 2, 1922. Emily Anderson born the 7th, month unknown, 1849; married Robert Lawhorn; they were the parents of Minnie Dora Lawhorn Hill, wife of Henry C. Hill; Minnie died September 5, 1957, at the age of 91 years. Morgan Tonville Anderson born November 15, 1851; Gregory Thomas Anderson born January 27, 1854.

It appears that some of the Anderson brothers left South Carolina and went to other places.

The second son of William and wife was Jesse Anderson.

The oldest daughter of William Anderson and wife was Martha Rollins Anderson, who married Calvin Hatchel about 1844; children were:

Margaret Ann Hatchel born August 20, 1845; married Daniel Jeffords, who was born August 5, 1842 and died November 16, 1909; Margaret Ann died November 3, 1924. In 1955 he inaugurated a "Festival of Sacred Music" with members of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra which has become an annual event held at the Akron Armory or at the Firestone Conservatory of Music. In 1962-63 he did graduate work at Northwestern University.

In addition to the choral and the annual festivals each year, many of the choir members sing in the Akron Symphony Chorus with Lenough conducting the Akron Orchestra and the Akron Symphony chorus. Since its organization by Lenough the Choir of First Presbyterian Church has been a great leader in bringing the finest sacred music to the community both at its regular Sunday services and at Choral Vespers which are presented several times each year. In these choral services the choir and soloists have presented several excellent works. First Presbyterian Church's large congregation is not only musically appreciative but it is musically very liberal. The soloists and choir often perform with an original Latin or French text both at Sunday services and at choral services. The church's pastor often reminds the members that the major elements of Christian theology are embraced by most denominations with this wonderful spirit. Music of all faiths and all ages is welcomed at the church. In 1959 Lenough studied at the University of Frankfurt, Germany with Professor Helmet Walcha. Note his writings; (It would be difficult to imagine more magnificent experiences than the ones I had in Europe. The stimulation of thousands of miles of travel, the pleasure of constantly meeting new people and learning new ideas coupled with a love of learning which I carried with me enabled me to accomplish all of the formal study I had hoped to and a little more. Indeed all these factors made long, difficult, concentrated study a thing of giant joy in Europe. I discussed music and philosophy of performance with great musicians of other countries with whom I constantly came in contact at the Festivals), Joseph Lenough Anderson 1959.

Proved by virtue of didimus
directed to geo: Johnston,
Esq. this 16th day of August,
1765, before Alexander Mc-Intosh, Esq. Benjamin Rogers and Sarah Booth, Exors and Executrix of the said Will (recorded in Will Book 1760-1767, recorded on page 538).

Revolutionary General Francis Marion, (see extracts from the Revolutionary War 1775-1783 Muster Rolls and files in the Department of State in Washington, D. C.). The lists are doubtless not completed but do reveal interesting data. Men in the Revolution that resided in the Marion County District of South Carolina are recorded on the pension list under the Act of Congress, 7th of June, 1832, i.e., John Booth, rank Private, annual allowance 80 pounds, received 240 pounds for services rendered to the South Carolina Militia when placed on the pension roll May 17, 1783, commencement of pension March 4, 1831, to John Booth, age 74 years old. (See South Carolinians in the Revolution by Sarah Sullivan Ervin and a copy is found at the University of South Carolina Library.) It appears that William Weatherford and John Booth served under Captain Samuel Wise.

John Booth, of Welsh immigrants, received a bounty grant from the Governor of South Carolina as recorded in the Secretary of State's office. He settled in the Welsh Tract area that lay between Black Creek and the big Pee Dee River. These Welsh immigrants coming from the North, probably Pennsylvania, as appears from extracts of scraps of papers in an aged brown envelope in the National Archives in Washington. This writer copied the words from these scraps of papers.

It appears that John Booth was born in Maryland about 1761 and married a second time at Marion (Village), South Carolina, about 1831 to Rebecca Bird. Rebecca Bird Booth was allowed a Revolutionary War pension March 28, 1858 while a resident of Marion, South Carolina District, age 49 years old. (The Land Act of 1833.) He settled along the Black Mingo Creek where he was engaged in skirmish and battle and wounded in the leg and at a Fort on the Congaree, residence of soldiers at enlistment, Pee Dee River in Marion District, South Carolina. John Booth's daughter Sarah, born about 1809. She or some Sarah Booth married July 10, 1829 to Burrell Shelton, as married by Benjamin Sharp and a Sarah Booth later married William Weatherford. He was supposed to have been born in Virginia about 1756, however, another book states that he was born about 1746. Sally Booth was born to John and Rebecca Bird Booth between 1831 and 1835 and Sally married Evander Powers and they had two daughters; Rebecca, born 1870 married 1st Asbury Haring and second Robert Walter Wise; the other daughter Maggie Powers was born 1872 and married George Harrell; both Rebecca and Maggie were excellent seamstresses. This writer has had on many occasions many beautiful garments that were made by Rebecca and Maggie. Rebecca died about 1950 at the age of 80 years old; Maggie died at about 1954. John Booth's widow married James Christopher Wise and they had two children. John Booth died January 20, 1835.

The following few notes were copied in the Library in Norfolk about August of 1959 and may be of interest to show how some people came to America.

Hannah Wise came to America by John Wise of Northampton County, Virginia, in 1655. John Booth came in 1694 by Edmond Scarborough. Eliza Booth, a maid came in 1648, by Lewis Burwell and Thomas Haws of York River County, Virginia. William Booth came in 1648 by Thomas Guyer and Company. Thomas Booth came in 1654 by John Watson and John Bagnell of West Moreland County, Virginia. John Booth came in 1649 by Edmund Scarborough, Jr., Northampton County, Virginia. Mary Booth came in 1648 by Joe Haddey, Isle of Wight County, Virginia. John Booth came in 1642-1651. John Hampton came in 1649. Eliza Hampton came in 1640 by William Hampton.

DEW-HAYES-BERRY-FORE

Note: A superior number with a name indicates degrees approximately removed from Colonel Thomas Dewe, Speaker of the House of Burgesses (Burgeffef) and one of the Governor's Counselors (1642-1660).

Henning's statutes and other statutes of Virginia from the date 1629 are in book form and are in the state library in the Capitol, Columbia, South Carolina.

There are several journals of the House of Burgesses of Virginia dated 1629-1658-59. It appears that there were 500 copies of the first journals printed in Richmond, Virginia, as edited by H. R. McIlwaine. It is also noted in the preface of the book that the great seal of the state of Virginia is impressed thereon. An interesting note as to spelling:

"The Houfe of Burgeffes of Virginia." The spelling of the day appeared "f" used in the place of an "s".

In the general index of the book at page 181 appears the name:

Dew (Dewe, Doe, Due) Thomas, 1619-59, Burgefs, member of the Council; Petitioner, at page 99; on page 69 Thomas Dewe member of the Council of the Burgesses. On page 91 according to an order of this Assembly upon the petition of several members of the Burgess and from other Commissioners of Northampton County, Colonel Thomas Dewe and others were nominated as affiants to attend the Governor and Secretary for the settlement of the peace of that County and the punishment of delinquents there according to their demerits, the appointment of all officers both for peace and war (warr), the division of that County, of the hearing, and determining of the business of damages between one Captain Howe and one Colonel Scarborough, with all other matters and things necessary in the instant for the preservation for the peace of that place for which this shall be their commission. It appearing that Colonel Thomas Dew was appointed one of the commissioners to that County for the preservation of the peace and dignity thereof. On page 97 Colonel Thomas Dew was present at a grand assembly held at James City March 31, 1655. As recorded on page 113 Colonel Thomas Dew received another commission from the Governor dated April 3, 1658, he being named one of the Councillors nominated by the Governor and approved by the House. Colonel Thomas Dew was again appointed as one to administer the oath to the Burgesses. See page 115. On page 129 (from Henning's Statutes at Large, Volume 1, page 431-432) order of the grand assembly of March, 1657-58, naming the Governor and Council of Virginia, Colonel Thomas Dew appearing with others as a member of the Council. On Tuesday, March 30, 1656, on page 346:

A petition of Arthur Dew setting forth that he being a soldier in the late engagement on the Monongahela, under General Braddock, had the misfortune to be so wounded as to be rendered utterly incapable of maintaining himself, and praying relief from this House was presented to the House and read, and thereupon:

RESOLVED that the said Arthur Dew be allowed the sum of 20 pounds as a recompense for the damage he hath received, and in full of the 5 pounds allowed by Act of Assembly, to the soldiers who were in that engagement and is paid.

ORDERED, that it be an instruction to last mentioned committee to make an allowance to the said Arthur Dew pursuant to the said resolution.

It appears that in the olden days at times there were no given names but that a person and/or individual was called by one particular name. At times a person was identified with one particular name and his residence or location. For example, "Richard of Nottingham."

The name Dew, Dewe, Dewes, Dews, Deu, Dou, Due, Dhu, Du, and Deugh are all found to be ways to spell the same sound of that particular name. It appears that the name changed about every one hundred years, more or less, the spelling thereof. In "British Family Surnames" the author identifies the present day name Dew as having been that of French origin and/or Latin origin and/or Norman origin. About 1066 and at the time of the Norman Conquest the name as spelled above and certain derivations thereof appears to have come forth. The "British Patent Rolls" identifies the name and dates with some degree as follows: Due was granted land for services rendered the King of England at the time about the year 1216; Doe owned some land and was given some land about 1227; another Doe held land by authority from the then present King about 1234; one Ralph Do was a preacher about 1296; a merchant Bernard Doo of 1299; it appears that one Du and one Dou and one Deu and another Du had committed some crimes prior to 1300 and about 1300 were pardoned by the King; John F. Dieu lived in the Town of St. Edmunds about 1303; John Du about 1312 was an (attorney), (solicitor), (barrister) in Ireland; in 1310 William Do appears to have been a collector of port customs; one William Dieu was appointed an overseer in 1310 to inquire of the Templars; about 1315 one William Do and Walter Do were recorded in Devon; in 1322 Richard F. Dieu was a merchant; in 1324 John Do was recorded at Somerset; in 1374 one John Do was recorded as of Middlesex; Richard Dewe about 1390-91 was a land holder; Luellen Dewe, 1396; John Dew was wounded and died after a pitched battle with two men who wounded him from ambush with bows and arrows and struck him with a pry-fork; about 1415 one John Dewe was master of a vessel that sailed with the King; Thomas Dewe is recorded as of Norfolk about 1427; one Meredith Dewe in 1449 was excluded from office holding in the British Isles, the exclusion being for his lifetime; one William Dewe was a land holder about 1549 and another William Dewe was a holder of land about 1548; one John Dewe held certain lands in 1550.

About and during the year 1535 births, baptisms, marriages and deaths were registered and since that year such separate registers identify the name Dew, Dewe and others up to and through the year about 1660 for the purpose at hand, as subsequent records identifies the Dew (Dewe) very well.

It appears that Colonel Thomas Dew owned thousands and thousands of acres of land in Virginia and that he also had a very large family and the offspring therefrom to this day (1963) are in the thousands. The name (Dew and Dewe) appears in many of the old records of the early Virginia Colony and Maryland and North Carolina and South Carolina and West Virginia and some other records. Many biographies and some autobiographies reveal and identify Colonel Thomas Dew as the first generation in America and of the early Virginia colony.

Colonel Thomas Dew was born in England about 1600 and died sometime before 1691 in York County, Virginia. He married Elizabeth -----? and some of their children were; Ann, born about 1634; Andrew, born about 1625 and died about 1660; others were John, Thomas, Elizabeth, Richard, etc. Colonel Thomas Dew's children made up the second generation of Dews in America.

Andrew Dew, (Essex Co.) son of Colonel Thomas Dew, married Ann (Duncombe)? (Whitehead)?; their children were Thomas Dew, Andrew Dew and Ann Dew. These three children making up the third generation of Dews in America. (Also see the Dew family.)

Andrew Dew³ died about 1714, however, prior to that time he had married Flora ? (Price) and children to this union were: Ishmal, Andrew, Samuel, Thomas, William, Robert and Ann; Andrew Dew³ was born in Virginia about 1650 and died in Virginia about 1714. Andrew and Flora Dew's children comprise the 4th generation of Dews in America.

Thomas Dew,⁴ a son of Andrew and Flora Dew, was born about 1711 in Virginia and died about 1757 or 1758. Thomas Dew married first, Ann McLaughlin and his second marriage was to Elizabeth Cromwell; children to Thomas Dew were the fifth generation of Dews in America, namely, Ann, Robert, Andrew, Ishmal, Betty, Thomas, Judith, Alice and William.

William Dew,⁵ a son of Thomas Dew, was born about 1740 in Virginia and died about 1791; William Dew married first Elizabeth (Swinton?) and his second marriage was to Sarah Clarke. It appears that Thomas and Elizabeth Dew had one child, namely, Thomas Dew, born May 28, 1763; it appears that William and Sarah Dew (his second wife) had two children, namely, Elizabeth and William. Therefore, Thomas, Elizabeth and William were of the 6th generation of Dews in America.

Thomas Dew⁶ married Lucy Gatewood; Thomas Dew died April 23, 1849 in King and Queen County, Virginia; Lucy Gatewood was born May 24, 1776, married Thomas Dew, June 7, 1793; Lucy died November 17, 1859; she was the daughter of Cheney and Elizabeth Gatewood; children to the union of Thomas and Lucy Dew were: William, born September 28, 1796; Mary Ellen; John Wesley; Thomas Roderick; Philip; Elizabeth; Benjamin Franklin; Luther Calvin; and infants that died young. Thomas and Lucy Dew's children made up the 7th generation of Dews in America.

John Dew, Jr., Esq., was born in Virginia about 1675 in Isle of Wight County; he married Susannah Shearer, a daughter of Captain Robert Shearer; they settled probably in what is known as Hertford County, North Carolina; from this union many people today have a common ancestor; it appears he was a very wealthy man of the times being a large land holder and owner having received land grants from the Lord Proprietors; he had a varied political career and a civic leader of the times; he served in Captain Robert Patterson's Company of Militia; his Will is dated September 6, 1740 in Bertie County, North Carolina, however it appears the Will was probated in the November term of Court in 1744 in Northampton County, North Carolina; children of John Dew, Jr., and his wife Susannah Shearer Dew were of the fourth generation of Dews in America dating from Colonel Thomas Dew; namely: John Dew, Joseph Dew, Sr., Spencer Dew, Morvin Dew, William Dew, Patience Dew, and Elizabeth Dew.

Captain John Dew, III, Esq., married Elizabeth Bryant, daughter of James Bryant, Sr.; he was a member of Captain Robert Patterson's Company of Militia of Meherrin River about April 1720 (See North Carolina History and Gen. Reg. I 3 P. 443); it appears he was a land owner of some report and it appears he was a Justice of the Peace for Northampton County being a civic and political leader there; he was seated as a Justice on the Bench for Edgecombe County Court; at times he signed his name merely as "Dew"; the Last Will and Testament of John Dew, III, was made in Northampton County on September 2, 1749 and probated in the Will Book A.P.I. Edgecombe County Court in 1760; the following named children from this union appear to be the fifth generation of Dews in America dated from Colonel Thomas Dew; Abraham Dew, Sr., John Dew IV, Arthur Dew, Sarah Dew.

(See the Edgecombe County, North Carolina, Census for 1790 for other Dews.)

The Census for 1790 for Nash County, North Carolina, Halifax District, shows Duncan Dew, son of John Dew (4th) being of the fifth generation with his wife and 20 slaves; his wife was Elizabeth Nicholson; his Will was probated in February term of Court, 1805, Nash County, North Carolina.

John Dew⁶ a son of Abraham Dew, Sr., apparently had no wife and children; his Will is dated July 29, 1771 in Halifax County, North Carolina, and probated in the February term of court in 1772.

It appears that Abraham Dew and Reuben Dew made no Will.

Mary Wise, daughter of Thomas A. and Charity Dew Wise and granddaughter of Christopher Dew, Sr. and Mary Berry Dew, married (1854) Samuel Benjamin Weatherford, born 1830. Mary Wise was the youngest daughter of Thomas A. and Charity Dew Wise; Mary was born the 25th day of January 1832 and died the 6 day of November, 1906; children to this union were: George Weatherford, born about 1855; married Elizabeth Hayes; he died June 18, 1884; she died about 1920; Furman Weatherford, born about 1882; married Ida Connors; Hattie Georgia Weatherford, born September 1884; married Basscombe Campbell; Samuel Mack Weatherford, born January 6, 1857; married Mary Gertrude Anderson; she was born December 25, 1861; Levann Weatherford was born 1859; married Tally Hiatte; Henry William Weatherford was born May 6, 1861; married 25 January 1882 to Catherine Jane Hampton, a daughter of George C. and Matilda Rogers Hampton; Henry William died January 30, 1933; Catherine Jane died December 23, 1955;

Thomas Benjamin Weatherford, born April 5, 1872; married (1st) Anna Daniels in 1890; married (2nd) Georgia

Hampton Gainey (a widow); he died February 25, 1937; Anna died June 10, 1934; Georgia died January 5, 1955;

Frances Weatherford, born June 14, 1876; married Robert Reuben Jackson about 1891; one child Willie Robert Jackson born November 17, 1892, married (1st) Isadore Jackson, February 1911, and (2nd) marriage to Annie Price; Robert Reuben Jackson died January 1937; Frances died November 25, 1915. (See the Hampton Family notes.)

Sarah Booth married William Weatherford (Bible Record) and children to this union were: Frances, William, and Samuel Benjamin Weatherford, (See John Booth Will).

Absalom Dew, son of Reuben Dew, recorded a deed at the Marion County Court House, South Carolina on July 6, 1804 (Book C, pp. 19-20). William Dew was a son of Absalom Dew and Elizabeth Berry Dew, born about 1801 and William married (1st) Mary Coleman and they had five children; William died January 8, 1882; he was listed in Captain John Medver's Company, Battalion of South Carolina Militia for the War of 1812. William Dew's second wife was Celia Miles and they had four children. Alexander Dew was a brother of William Dew.

Elizabeth Berry Dew was a daughter of Andrew and Anna Smith Berry.

Christopher Dew, Sr. came to South Carolina with his father Abraham Dew, Jr. along with his sister Sarah and brother Abiah and his uncle Reuben Dew. Christopher Dew, Sr. owned many acres of land in both Marion and Marlboro County, South Carolina. Dillon County today is a part of the old Marion County district. It was told to the writer that Christopher Dew gave his oldest daughter Charity Dew Wise 1200 acres of land. Charity Dew Wise was born in Marion County, South Carolina.

Nancy Dew, daughter of Christopher Sr. and Mary Berry Dew, born about 1796 and married Edden Hayes; children: Nicholas W. Hayes, born about 1841 and married (1st) Mollie Jackson; Wilson Hayes married Nancy E. Waters; Joseph D. Hayes and John David Hayes.

Nicholas W and Mollie Jackson Hayes' children: Joseph Hayes married Annie Smith; Averilla Hayes married James Elerson Wise about 1896; Jesse Hayes married Janie Wise about 1898 a daughter of Robert Calhoun and Jane Watson Wise; Zilla Hayes married General Wise about 1904, a son of Christopher and Martha Jones Wise; Elijah Hayes married a Miss Bullard about 1912.

Nicholas W. Hayes married (2nd) Sallie Jones Harper about 1905; no children; he died December 30, 1907. Mollie Jackson Hayes died about 1900.

Wilson and Nancy E. Waters Hayes' children: Thomas R. Hayes, born October 17, 1859 and married Fanny Berry; she was born October 4, 1862; Thomas died March 3, 1926. Wilson Hayes died about 1920; his wife Nancy E. Waters Hayes died about 1907.

Mary Dew born about 1798, another daughter of Christopher, Sr. and Mary Berry Dew, married Jesse Perritt (Perrett); no children; some other children of Christopher, Sr. and Mary Berry Dew were Marina Dew, born 1801 and married Henry Hayes; Henritta Dew Lane, Christopher Dew, Jr. born 1803 and married Miss Elizabeth Jones, sister of Bryant Jones; children: Frederick C. Crinda Dew married a Richerson; she died about 1909. It appears she was a sister to Frederick C. and John A. Dew.

(See the Marion County Court House, South Carolina, Deed Book C for some old and interesting deeds by the Dews.)

It appears that Sarah Dew, Christopher Dew, Sr. and their cousin Absolom Dew all married into the Andrew Berry family.

The tombstones in Marion County, Dillon County, Horry County and Marlboro County reveal much of the fascinating history about the Dews, Weatherfords, Wises, Booths, Berrys and others herein treated. (Sarah Dew born about 1772.)

Stephen Berry and his wife Sarah were the parents of the famous Henry Berry also known as "Crossroads" Henry Berry born January 13, 1796, married Charity Crofford, no dates of her; Henry Berry died July 9, 1876. The story is told to the author that Henry Berry owned 10,000 acres of land, more or less, in and around Marion County, South Carolina; he was a very hard worker and busy; he employed and worked many people on his land and it appears he progressed financially very fast and accumulated some wealth before his death. The story is further told that he gained the confidence of two white men and signed papers to the effect that if these two white men would cremate Henry Berry's body after death, then these two white men were to receive a nice young pair of mules and a new two-horse wagon and the two men set about preparing 8 cords of the best oak wood to cremate Henry Berry's body with and that they cremated his remains on July 11, 1876. The cremation being carried out to perfection. A very tall scaffold (monument) was erected where the body was cremated about 4 miles from Sellers (Dillon County), South Carolina (See W. W. It appears that Rev. Thomas Hampton and his wife showed more favoritism towards the Rev. Thomas Hampton, Jr. than they did towards Wade. It appears that he (Wade) married and came to Spartanburg (now South Carolina) and built a log hut there along with some of his wife's people including her father. Wade Hampton then went some miles away from home one day, too far removed to return home that night, but when he arrived home the next day, he found all the (6) people murdered and/or scalped by Indians with the hut burned and destroyed and there was the malodorous stench of burnt human flesh including his wife and baby. It appears that he went about hunting Indians and found and killed 12 of them. He then went to Charleston, South Carolina. He owned much property there. His son Wade Hampton II, had a son by the name of Jessa Hampton as recorded in some of the old library books in Florence, South Carolina, gives his name and identifies him as riding a horse from Charlestown, South Carolina, into West Marion County, South Carolina (now Florence County, South Carolina). He met and married Frances Finkley; she was a great-grandparent of the writer (Katie Weatherford Anderson); no birth or death or marriage date of Jessa Hampton; his wife, Frances Finkley was born September 15, 1798. It is said by a granddaughter of Jessa and Frances Finkley Hampton (Catherine Jane Hampton Weatherford) mother of this writer that Frances Finkley was enrolled in some college of arts and had returned home and found her father and mother all packed to travel West and that she refused to go with them. About this time Jessa Hampton came riding up on a horse and soon thereafter married Frances Finkley and they settled there on the homestead of several hundred acres of land in West Marion County (now Florence County), South Carolina. They both lived to be old but he passed away many years before she did; children to this union were: Martha Hampton born September 18, 1828; she must have died in infancy; Ruthy C. Hampton born January 18, 1831 died in infancy; Dorothy A. Hampton born January 18, 1831 a twin to Ruthy C. Hampton; Dorothy married Richard Barfield; William W. Thomas L. Hampton born May 2, 1838 married Frances Weatherford; he was killed in the Civil War about July 20, 1863; she married (2nd) Jesse Randol Moore born May 19, 1840; he died October 26, 1880; then Frances Weatherford Hampton Moore married a third time to John Taylor; she was born February 9, 1838, a daughter of William and Sarah Booth Weatherford; sister of Samuel Benjamin Weatherford; the age of 13 years old his aunt Henritta deeded to him all of her land and personal property. Henritta died about August 29, 1889. Eva Douglas Wise and Henning Statutes appear to carry some of the same data regarding the Wise and Dews except that Eva Douglas Wise gives more data and dates than Henning Statutes on some particular genealogical lines treated herein. Also, see Royal Descent of Fosters, see Peerage, see Burks Royal Families Volume I as they also all carry some data of import to the genealogy treated herein. Also see Ancient European and English Histories for some of the Royalties treated therein.

I, King of England; he was born about 1100; died about December 1, 1135 and it appears he was the son of William the Conqueror. Sir Henry was a son of the first Earl of Northumberland and his wife was Margaret Neville daughter of Lord Neville; Elizabeth died February 12, 1371. Sir Henry Hotspur was a grandson of Henry III King of England 1216-1272; Sir Henry Hotspur, Earl of Northumberland 1394-1455 was slain in the Battle of St. Albans about 1455. Sir Henry Hotspur II, Earl of Northumberland 1421-1461 married Eleanor, daughter of Sir Richard Poynings. Margaret Percy married Sir William Gascoinge. Elizabeth Gascoinge married Sir George Talbois. Anne Talbois married Sir Edward Dymoke of Lincolnshire, he was a direct descendant of Edward I, King of England and died in 1566 (See Screwsby House of Champions). Frances Dymoke married Sir Thomas Windebank about August 20, 1566 and it appears he was a (Knight), knighted 1603 and died October 24, 1607; he was Clerk of the Signet to Queen Elizabeth and King James who was a son of Sir Richard Windebank of Berks; one son Sir Thomas Windebank 1582-1646 and three daughters of whom Mildred Windebank married Robert Reade, a son of Andrew Reade of Linkenholt, England; See a Will dated December 10, 1626; she died 1630. It appears Thomas Reade (Royalist) was a son and Colonel George Reade, 1600-1671, was secretary of the Colony of Virginia about 1640 and was a member of the House of Burgess 1649-1656; also a member of the Council about 1657-58 and it appears Colonel George Reade married Elizabeth Martin, a daughter of Captain Nicholas Martin of York County, Virginia; Colonel George Reade was also a Justice of the House of Burgess about 1631-33, see Henning records especially the Henning Statutes as of 1358 forward, also see Standards Colonial Register; also see Genealogical Training Class, Sunday School Lessons, L.D.S., p. 122 for graphical sketch. Mildred Reade married Colonel Augustine Warner born October 20, 1643 and died June 10, 1681, and was a Burgess of Virginia, about 1674-1675; he was Speaker and Counsellor about 1676-1677. Mary Warner married about February 17, 1680 Colonel John Smith of Gloucester Virginia. Captain Phillip Smith of Fleets Bay, Northumberland County, Virginia, was born about 1743 and married Mary Matthews. Sarah Smith married about January 30, 1746, Mr. George Heale, of Lancaster County, Virginia and it appears he was a Burgess in 1759 (see Hennings Statutes) (see Will probated July 28, 1806). It appears that Smith Heale of Fauquier County, Virginia, died in Kentucky about 1817 and that he had married Nancy Douglas of Fauquier County, Virginia. Eliza Heale married William M. Hamilton. Nancy Hamilton married Hugh Douglas. Evelyn Beverly Douglas married November 3, 1869 John Sergeant Wise and he died May 12, 1913; he was a son of Henry Alexander Wise (Governor) of Virginia.

It appears the Wises were of England and some came to America and the spelling of the name Wise changed many times through the centuries.

One John Wise married Joane Millston and their son Thomas Wise married Margaret Britt. John Wise, son of Thomas and Margaret, married Thomazine Fulford and his daughter Alice married a John Wise. John Wise and wife Alice had a son Oliver that married Margaret Tremayne and their son John Wise appears to have married three times having three children by his first wife Mary Chudlleigh, namely, James, Nicholas and Ann, then Thomas and Piers by his second wife, Dorothy Leigh and then, by his third wife Ann Matthew daughter of Sir George Matthew, children were Leonard and Elizabeth. James Wise married Alicia Dynham and their son John Wise married Alicia Harris and another son William Wise, born about 1560, married Friswida; received the Honor of Knighthood for conspicuous gallantry and bravery, probably the Battle of the Spurs August 16, 1613. William died about 1626. Therefore, it may be assumed that William Wise was Knighted by Henry VIII. John and Alicia Harris Wise appears to have had many children of whom Thomas Wise was a son; also another son named John Wise. John Wise, the first son of John and Alicia Harris, married Emmota Vavasour and their children were William, Samuel, Christopher and Henry. Sir Thomas Wise married Margaret Stowford. William Wise, the Knight, was born about 1560 and died about 1626 and his sons were John and William and three daughters. Another John Wise married Dorothy Brooking. This John Wise appears to have had three brothers; Samuel, Henry who died in 1622 and Christopher. Nicholas and Christopher were sons of Samuel and Sarah Wise. It appears that Nicholas lived near Norfolk County, Virginia, in 1660 and that Christopher Wise of the Barbados in 1665. Also Abraham Wise was in the Barbados about the same time. (See Burke's Landed Gentry.) (See also Charles Worthy re Wise Arms and Pedigree.) (See also Thompson.) (See the Sutton Family Parchment Rolls.)

Hennings Statutes and Henning does not give a list of the Eastern shore Burgess for any particular year chronologically, that is, also the Eastern shore at the time appears to have been part of the Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina coast. Journal of the House of Burgess reveals that John Wise was a Burgess about 1705 and that his wife at the time was Matilda West Wise. John Wise married Hannah Scarborough and they lived along the Coast lands about 1655 and some of their children were, namely, John Wise married Mary (Brownwell?); William Wise married Sarah (Brownwell?), and it appears that William married the second time Frances Clark; John and Hannah had a daughter named Mary Wise that married William Anderson. William Wise was born in England about 1620, a brother of John Wise.

From the poorly kept notes and records of the day there is not too much understanding about the genealogical line connection except to say that the line appears to have been connected as given herein and it is also very difficult to separate one John Wise from another. Some writers and notes refer to one John Wise who married Matilda West and that they were the parents of Mary Cade Wise and other sons and daughters written about herein and that their son Samuel Wise was born in England about 1738 as was his brother Thomas Wise. Samuel

Wise and Thomas Wise immigrated to South Carolina. Samuel Wise was a Captain and (Major) in the Continental Army having been commissioned from South Carolina (Company of Rangers) and he labored in the Pee Dee Area of what we know today to be that of Southern Marlboro County, Dillon County, Marion County, Georgetown County, Williamsburg County and Florence County, South Carolina. Captain Samuel Wise had married a widow, Ann Beatty, and she was the widow of the deceased Captain Francis Beatty. Samuel and Ann had a daughter by the name of Jane Wise and Jane married Joseph Ball, Jr., about April 27, 1786. Captain (Major) Samuel Wise was killed in the Battle of Savannah, Georgia, October 9, 1779. Thomas and Charity Dew Wise were the great grand parents of this writer. Charity Dew Wise died December 19, 1852 they were the parents of five children.

One writer reveals that Colonel John West's granddaughter Mary Cade Wise married John Scarborough of Maryland.
